Role of the Commission

The primary function of the Saskatchewan Police Commission as outlined in The Police Act, 1990, section 19, is to promote adequate and effective policing throughout the province and the preservation of peace, prevention of crime, efficiency of police service and the improvement of police relationships with communities within Saskatchewan.

Section 12 authorizes the Commission to make regulations on various matters that will upgrade police services generally through training and standardization. The Commission may conduct audits and reviews as well as provide information to Boards of Police Commissioners.

The Commission as an appellate body may review the suspension from duty of a police member or chief of police. The Commission also may hear appeals of a decision of a hearing officer.

The Commission, in response to its changed mandate brought on by changes to The Police Act, 1990, continues to place emphasis on training. To this end, the Saskatchewan Police College continues to deliver training at the highest level and is ranked among the top police training facilities in Canada. A focus of consistent review of appeals of discipline and suspension as well as review and audits of police services continues to be of importance to the Commission.

*In the forseeable future, the municipal police attrition rate is projected to be higher. This will add pressure to the police college for additional recruit training.

Meetings

The Saskatchewan Police Commission held two meetings in 1998/99.

Two Provincial Training Board meetings were held.

The Commission, in its role of promoting efficiency, improving police relations in the community and consulting with and making recommendations to Boards of Police Commissioners and Chiefs of Police, places considerable emphasis on cultural relations.

The changing demographics of Saskatchewan's population require that police services represent the cultural mix of the province's citizens. In Saskatchewan, the emerging challenge is to have greater representation of aboriginal citizens at all levels of policing. The Commission will continue to place great importance on this issue.

Visits

The Director of the Saskatchewan Police Commission Services and the Director of the Saskatchewan Police College continue to make on-site contact with police services around the province on work related matters and informal visits to ensure two-way communication is on-going between the Commission, Boards and the police community.

Canadian Police College

The Commission acts in a co-ordinating role between the police services and the Canadian Police College in the allocation of spaces for courses and the attendance of the various officers.

In 1998, candidates from the following police services attended the Canadian Police College:

Police Services	Number of Candidates
Regina	12
Saskatoon	16
Moose Jaw	8
Prince Albert	3
Estevan	1
Weyburn	0

Appeals to the Commission

There were no appeals on discipline matters during this reporting period.

Saskatchewan Police College

Police Training

The Saskatchewan Police College, with offices and classrooms located at the University of Regina, is under the authority and control of the Saskatchewan Police Commission by virtue of The Saskatchewan Police Act, 1990.

The mission of the Saskatchewan Police College is to collaborate with Saskatchewan Municipal Police Agencies and their memberships to provide:

- the people of Saskatchewan with a professional policing service cognizant of cultural diversity, current police methodology and community expectations;
- a systematic approach to training research, design and delivery;
- basic recruit training;
- on-going in-service training and education to enhance and compliment personal career development;
- specialized investigative techniques; and
- on-going evaluation of current trends and technology which impact police responses.

Courses are offered for all levels of personnel, from recruit to management. Regularly offered courses include:

- Recruits;
- Operational Investigators;
- Senior Constables' Development;
- Introduction to Management;
- Police Managers;
- Effective Presentations;
- Cultural Relations;
- Fire Investigation; and
- Drug Investigation.

Other courses and seminars are offered as identified through a systematic needs analysis process.

New initiatives throughout the year included:

- increasing recruit training to two courses;
- a media course for Justice personnel;
- Fraud Level I;
- a media course for prosecutors; and
- Fire Investigation Level II.

Changes occurred to the "Police Managers' Course" held in the fall of 1998. Staff instructors at the Police College were sponsored to attend several special training initiatives throughout Canada to keep them abreast of current trends.

The College recognizes that in order to deliver programs which impact and enhance police officers' knowledge and skills, the instructors must continually be trained and informed. The College continues to co-sponsor individual police officers in specialized areas of police investigation. It is worthy of note that co-operation between police and other agencies such as Social Services, medical personnel and various components of the justice system is enhanced during joint investigations.

Police College staff provided many hours of consultation, research and program development to other police agencies and local government departments.

A total of 425 candidates were trained; 405 in-house and 20 elsewhere where the College provided sponsorship.

These candidates represented Municipal Police Services, RCMP, CN and CP Police, Wascana Centre Authority, Department of Social Services, Yorkton Tribal Council, Brandon Police Service, East St. Paul Police Service, Crown Prosecutors, Department of Justice, Electrical Inspectors, Fire Commissioner's Office, Fire Insurance Investigators, Insurance Adjusters and the File Hills Child Care. Several other outside police agencies took advantage of some of this specialized training.
